Odyssey's Best: Excuse

At one time or another, almost everyone has had to drum up an excuse whether it was for being late with an assignment, late to school, or absent from class. Of course, we all feel guilty about making up excuses, don't we? Remember when you were in grade school and didn't do that book report and the only excuse was "My dog ate it!"?

Well, we've grown up and our excuses through high school were much more creative. Odyssey's favorites included the following gems: "My mother threw it away." "It's in my locker." "I left it home, right by the door." "I forgot." "Assignment, what assignment?"

"I didn't have any paper and my pen ran out of ink." And then there are the brave few . . . "I didn't feel like doing it!"

What do you say if you're late to class? "I overslept, my alarm never went off." "I had car trouble." "I was talking to my teacher after class." "I had to go to the bathroom — I was getting sick in the toilet." "I fell down the steps and my notebook went everywhere." "I'm on Odyssey; I was shooting pictures." "The Mainstream Team took me to the wrong floor." "I went to the wrong class and didn't realize it until halfway through the period."

 I would like to thank the people who made my stay at Parkville great. I would also like to thank Doc. But, the people I have to thank the most are you, Mom and Dad. I love you both.

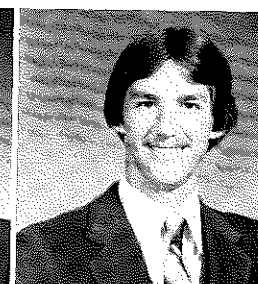

"Mr. Heiser's now; maybe he hasn't heard all the excuses," was the hope of people receiving one of the administration's famous blue passes.

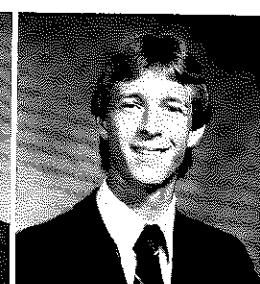

Nelson Lowman gets all set to try the "I lost my notebook on the steps and it flew everywhere" excuse!
